

CARPATHIAN CAMPAIGN SAID TO BE TURNING IN FAVOR OF AUSTRIA

GERMANS FEEL CONFIDENT THAT RUSSIAN STRENGTH HAS BEEN BROKEN IN GALICIA.

SMALL LOCAL BATTLES

Statements From European Capitals Tell of Successes of Their Armies at Widely Diver- gent Points.

With the renewal of offensive operations on the part of the Turks in the Caucasus apparently timed so as to divert the attention of the Allies from the field, the Austro-Germans continue to dominate the military situation.

The Teutonic allies are being pushed further to the south and strung out nearer the Roumanian frontier in order to meet any sudden movement over the passes from that country. The fighting in the Carpathians has brought no decisive engagement, both the Austrians and Russians claiming local successes. It is believed in London, however, that the battle may be expected soon to enter upon a critical stage both in the east and west. British military observers have expressed the opinion that Germany is still keeping a pre-emptive hand in the western theatre of the war while the Allies should expect another great offensive movement.

The German tactics of the last few days at various points on the western front, seem to have been to draw the Allies into a series of small engagements, and to have brought them little gain, judging by the official reports given out in Paris, and published prominently in London today. It is thought here that the next development may be a concentrated blow at some strategic point. So far as news is concerned, the Turks, supposed to be advancing in the Caucasus, are somewhere on the desert. Not one word has been heard of them since the announcement three days ago of their presence to the eastward of El Estep, and no further news has been received from the British outposts have been reported.

A message from Vienna, by way of Venice, says there is a growing pressure in Austria that the government follow the example of Germany and take over the control of all the grain and flour in the market.

From Petrograd comes the news that Emperor Nicholas has approved an appropriation of 100,000,000 rubles for the immediate construction of a government railroad from Petrograd to the 185 miles northeast of Petrograd, to the White Sea. This is a second line of communication with the outside world through this region, the other being to Archangel.

Russia has answered the new Austro-German offensive movement in Hungary and Bukovina with a resumption of the attack of the Germans in their own territory. The Russian army in East Prussia is again attempting to break the German line and an official report from Petrograd today indicates that heavy fighting is in progress. In two sections of the front it is stated that the Germans were defeated and driven back.

To the south the new Austro-German plan of campaign is developing rapidly. The Austrian army staff announced that the Russian army which invaded northern Hungary have been defeated and forced to retreat.

Petrograd military experts expect that the main attack will be delivered on the extreme Russian right wing in western Bukovina. The Russian position which is supported by the concentration of Austrian and German troops in Hungary.

Simultaneously with the stiffening of the Austro-German attack, the Turks have begun to re-enforce their positions in the Trans-Caucasian region and are again on the offensive. Russian and Turkish reports are contradictory, but it is apparent that severe fighting is in progress.

In the west there is less activity. The furious German assault of the last few days seems to have effected no important results.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Jan. 29.—The most encouraging war news from the Germans' standpoint comes from the Carpathian front. Austrian successes are reported to have been achieved consistently for some time now. The latest feat of the Austrians is said to have been the driving of the Russians from the Carpathian passes. The Vienna state that the Russians probably will be compelled soon to evacuate the Galician city of Lemberg, which they have occupied for several months.

From all theatres of war comes news of freezing weather, which bids fair to continue for some time. The temperature in East Prussia has fallen to 13 degrees below zero. Thus far the cold weather does not seem to have affected military activity.

The German official statement issued at the army headquarters today contains especially the night fighting which took place between the Germans and French on the western front and between the Germans and Russians in central Poland.

A night attack on the British supply station in Dunkirk is reported to have been made by a number of German submarines and aircraft. The attack was announced that the German attack with bayonets at night succeeded in driving the French from German trenches to which they had penetrated near Kiepou.

In Russian Poland, to the west of Warsaw several Russian trenches were captured by the Germans who claim to have repulsed a fierce Russian night counter attack.

Report of the day.

Paris, Jan. 29.—Jan. 29 was a day of comparative quiet along the battle front in France, judging from official announcements given out this afternoon. There were no artillery engagements, some of them fairly violent at different places, and one or two infantry encounters are mentioned. Apparently long sections of the line showed no activity whatever.

RUSSIAN REPORT.

Petrograd, Jan. 29.—The general staff of the Russian army today issued a report on the progress of the fighting as follows:

"In the country to the north of Tilsit, East Prussia, Russian detachments Jan. 25 took the offensive and drove back the Germans, destroying the railroad station at Posen a few miles north of Tilsit.

"The fighting in the forested country to the north of Wilkallen and Gumbinnen continues, and in certain places we are making progress. Along the rest of the front in East Prussia, the fighting has been quiet except in the country to the northeast of Darkehmen. Here the Germans attacked our positions but they were driven back to their trenches. On the right bank of the lower Vistula encounters continue between our advance guard and those of the enemy. On the left bank of the Vistula in the vicinity of Borjow, Russian troops aided by Sappers delivered an attack on the night of Jan. 27 on the trenches of the enemy after having the afternoon of that day successfully counterattacked, these trenches in this same locality, the Germans assumed offensive operations, but without success.

"The artillery duel along the left bank of the Vistula continued Jan. 27. Our efficient shelling against the position of the enemy silenced several of his batteries and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in their case near the village of Idomitz, where we saw German soldiers carrying numerous dead from their trenches.

"Galicia: Along the Carpathian front from Dukla pass to the railroad running between Sity and Mounkatch, we were engaged Jan. 26 and 27 with successful results. Our success was particularly marked in the vicinity of Tsekhanle and Dolnikow, where we captured on Jan. 27 an earthwork of the enemy and surrounded a second position. During these operations we took a number of prisoners, officers and men. The exact number has not yet been determined.

"Certain points along this front are under our observation in order to assume the offensive, but everywhere their endeavors have resulted in failure.

"There has been no change in the situation in Bukovina. Artillery duels and outpost skirmishes continue."

AUTHOR DESCRIBES TRIP TO FRONT IN KAISER'S COMPANY

Visit Sedan Battlefield Where Emperor Expresses Pleasure at Unity of the German People.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, via London, Jan. 29.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes some further details of the visit of Dr. Ludwig Ganghofer, the author, and of Emperor William at the German field headquarters. It tells of the trip made by the emperor and Dr. Ganghofer to Donchery, in the region of the Sedan battlefield. Here the emperor, in speaking of the unity of the German people, is quoted as saying to Dr. Ganghofer:

"It is my greatest pleasure that I could live to see it."

The emperor pointed out to the author where his father had stood at Sedan, where Napoleon and Bismarck had met, and other historic spots.

The trip by automobile finally brought the emperor and his entourage where after luncheon had been eaten the emperor turning smilingly to his son and said:

"I get better things to eat by you than by me. I shall consider whether I shall not requisition your cook."

The emperor here had an opportunity to see a thousand French prisoners of war. He was greatly pleased when some of them doffed their caps to him and he returned their salute. During this review he turned to a photographer and said: "I am taking pictures and said: 'Photograph the prisoners, and not always me.'"

The party later climbed a steep ascent to get a view of the surrounding regions. When descending Dr. Ganghofer slipped, but the emperor quickly grasped him by the arm and helped him to his feet, saying at the same time: "Soldiers and citizens must help each other all they can."

"CARNATION DAY" IN HONOR OF M'KINLEY

Some Carnations Worn by Janesville People in Honor of Martyred President Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Jan. 29.—Today was "Carnation Day" in the city of Janesville. The people of the city wore carnations in honor of the martyred President. The carnations were of various colors, but the favorite flower of McKinley whose birthday anniversary this is.

The custom of general wearing of carnations on McKinley's birthday was begun on Jan. 29, 1902 following his assassination at the Buffalo Exposition.

Justice Day of the Supreme Court, a native Ohioan and Secretary of State under McKinley had carnation bouquets from beneath his judicial robe today, an annual custom religiously observed by Day.

Incidentally this is the anniversary of the first attack upon the life of President McKinley. The first shot, fired by John D. Lee, was fired at 10:30 a.m. today by an insane painter.

Observances in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Jan. 29.—Ohio pays tribute today to the memory of Wm. McKinley upon the occasion of the anniversary of his birth. In the cities especially the carnation, McKinley's favorite flower, is worn by the people. Further up the river at Canton, the home of McKinley, the day was observed with memorial ceremonies which included the decoration of the tomb of the martyred president. The annual McKinley day banquet, attended by many prominent Ohioans, was held at Canton last night.

PROTECT STATE TRADE DECLARES PHILIPP AT UNIVERSITY BANQUET

Fair Treatment to Wisconsin Industries Through Legislature Urged By Governor Philipp Last Evening.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—Adverse legislation tending to drive industries out of Wisconsin was deprecated by Governor E. L. Philipp in a speech before a large company of university, statehouse and townfolk at Lathrop hall last night.

The occasion was Wisconsin products day, the home economics department of the college of agriculture, the menu consisting entirely of articles produced in this state.

The governor was quick to accord praise for the work the agricultural college is doing and promised it his loyal support. He was introduced by Dean H. Russell. President Van Hise also spoke.

Governor Philipp's topic was "The Future Possibilities of Wisconsin." "In shaping legislation," he said, "affecting manufacturers and enterprises it is wrong to assume that men must engage in manufacturing industries. Men are not obliged to engage in them, and would be fools to do so at a loss and with no return. To operate at less than a profit you must force them to close their doors. In dealing with them we must be reasonable and must not direct legislation at them as a class and treat them as outcasts and undesirable institutions. If we do this the state is not going to prosper. These men don't want favors but only fair treatment, and if they don't get it there are other states that will gladly take them in."

The governor had high praise for the work of the agricultural college. He said the price of farm products will remain high and the situation will be met by increased production per acre, and that in this endeavor the Wisconsin college of agriculture is "doing a great work in bringing agricultural education to the people and in agricultural pursuits." It should not confine its efforts, however, to those who come here for their instruction, but should reach out to teach those men actually engaged in agricultural pursuits. "It is the mission of this college," he said, "to carry its instruction to this class."

As far as my influence goes as chief executive of the state," he said, "I shall do all I can to promote agricultural education, and in saying this I do not mean to flatter the university people here or to give a favor with people here or to give a favor with the interest of the farmers of this state and what I believe to be the future welfare of the people of Wisconsin."

Governor Philipp declared that the secret of Wisconsin's success in being able to supply all her needs in the food line is in diversification of crops. There is substantial increase in production per acre. He paid tribute to the part the development of transportation has played in bringing the possibilities to the high point they have reached. He said this home products luncheon was like a homecoming to him, and he remembered well when as a boy in a county farm products was impossible.

"The Florida grapefruit and the California casawaba melon were unknown in Sauk county," he said.

A reply was made by Herr Platschke, privy councillor, who closed his remarks by leading a cheer for the United States and American children.

WOULD REPEAL ACT TO BUILD COMMONS AT THE UNIVERSITY

Calumet Assemblyman Proposes Bill to Withdraw $350,000 Appropriation for New Buildings.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Jan. 29.—The University of Wisconsin may lose the appropriation of $350,000 made by the last legislature for the erection of a men's dormitory, commons and union at the university.

Assemblyman Henry Hoffman, Calumet county, today introduced a bill to repeal this appropriation, and also that of $50,000 for furnishing the buildings.

Assemblyman Tows introduced a bill to repeal the law providing for non-partisan elections in all cities.

A joint resolution by Assemblyman Vint urges congress to "prohibit the shipping to the war zone of any article that will help to keep the warring armies at their murderous work, and furthermore forbid the lending of money to any government that has pledged interests in the war."

A bill by Assemblyman McGowan would abolish the office of city mayor and place the duties under dairy and food commissioners.

The repeal of the law giving country newspapers $100 each for the circulation of the law supplement at the close of the session of the legislature is a subject of public interest. J. B. Jensen of Cazenovia. He will have the laws printed in pamphlet form and sent to the people on request instead of the present method.

"The enactment of this law will save the state about $35,000 or $40,000," said Assemblyman Jensen today. "It is an expensive enterprise to be an expensive enterprise. It has come to be a habit of the country papers with a large circulation are no longer desirous of publishing the law supplement. It would be a good idea to publish 100,000 copies of the laws in booklets about five by seven inches. It provides that immediately after receipt of the copies by the superintendent of the public property, fifty copies shall be sent to each member of the legislature; one to each rural, grade or city high school; twenty-five copies to each town or village clerk and a large number of copies to larger cities. The superintendent shall mail a copy of the laws to any citizen upon application."

Senator Beck of Virgo, is of the opinion that all co-operative societies should be exempted from the provisions of the income tax law and that a bill to accomplish this purpose. He says that co-operative societies are not organized for profit and there is no reason why their income should be taxed. His exemption measure is in favor of the farming classes, he declares.

Another Cunningham Bill.

Senator L. E. Cunningham of Beloit is the author of a bill extending the time the state shall pay for cattle condemned of tuberculosis until July 1, 1917. Two years ago Senator Cunningham introduced a measure extending the time for the payment of the state for cattle condemned of tuberculosis until July 1, 1915. There are certain other provisions in the bill which tend to make the settlement of the claims easier.

Senator Perry announced today that on next Wednesday afternoon a hearing will be held by the state attorney on the bill providing for the condemnation of the cattle slaughtered as the result of the outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease. He expects that some of the farmers who have lost their cattle will be present at the hearing. This measure was also introduced by Senator Cunningham.

Petrograd Denies Report That Russia Would Conclude Separate Settlement With Austria.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Russian semi-official news agency has issued a categorical denial of this rumor. It is described as a "Russian without foundation and circulated by the newspapers of Austria with ulterior motives."

AUSTRIA MAY SEIZE ALL GRAIN SUPPLIES

Information from Vienna Says Catastrophe Threatens Unless Drastic Action is Taken.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Venice, via London, Jan. 29.—Dispatches from Vienna state that the city council and the press are demanding that the Austrian government immediately follow the example of Germany and confiscate all stocks of grain, flour and meal. Practically no grain is being offered on the market in Vienna, Budapest or Prague. The press, the dispatches state, declare that a great catastrophe threatens unless confiscation is adopted, and it denounces the selfish attitude of certain Hungarian agriculturalists, who it is claimed, are hiding thousands of tons of grain and flour.

WHEN THE MANUFACTURER BEAT THE BUSHES

In hunting they frequently send natives into the bush to drive the game into the open. This suggests an advertising parallel.

When the manufacturer advertises his product in the newspaper he is "beating the bushes."

He is creating customers who want his goods.

They are ready to buy.

Wire dealers back up the newspaper advertising by showing the goods and getting the benefit of the extra business.

And customers that are attracted by the manufacturer's advertising are likely to remain as permanent patrons of the store.

BIG CROWD TO DINE AT ANNUAL BANQUET

Commercial Club Committee Finds Ready Sale for Tickets to Annual Meeting and Dinner.

The ready response to the sale of tickets for the annual banquet of the Commercial club, to be held at 6:30 o'clock on Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building, according to members of the committee which heads arrangements, is indicative of the fact that the meeting will have a very large attendance.

To date the committee has received the assurance from slightly over one hundred local business men and others that they will be in attendance. Places are being reserved for a hundred and fifty, and it is expected that this number will be present, following the finishing of the canvassing on tomorrow morning.

The meeting and banquet is not only open to members of the commercial club, but to any particular person who cares to attend. The fact that Thomas White, of Trenton, Mo., will be present to speak on "Community Building" will alone in its warrant the presence of every citizen of the city. Mr. White enjoys a national reputation and will only after extensive negotiations that the local advancement organization was able to secure his services.

Seats or tables can be reserved by telephone, either by calling the office of the secretary of the Commercial club in the Jackson block or by informing members of the arrangement committee which is composed of Anna Rehberg, Joseph Connor, George S. Parker, William H. Dougherty and Thomas S. Nolan.

Consistent interest has already been manifested in the number of the evening's program which calls for the tentative outlining of the course for development, which will be followed through the present year.

PRINCETON'S PRESIDENT AGAINST PAID COACHES

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, Jan. 28.—Those big chested individuals who direct their efforts toward training the college athletes to grow and expand are all "hat up." "For why," they demand, "should we be picked on, for why?" The object of their wrath is John Grier Hibben, who succeeded Woodrow Wilson at presiding Princeton university. According to Princeton's classic head, college coaches are a detriment to a school and absolutely fatal to the rab-rab spirit. That isn't exactly the way Frexy said it, but that's the gist of his charge. Also, according to Hibben, school athletics as a whole would profit immensely if the whole lot of paid coaches were ousted into the cold gray "work" for a living.

The statement coming from the head of one of the largest universities in the country has aroused a storm of comment and argument, particularly through the east where there are many small colleges besides the larger ones, employing salaried mentors. The best defense of the paid coach system was advanced here today by a veteran coach who now is retired from the game. He hoisted Hibben's

CURLEY SAYS WILLARD HAS BIG CHANCE TO LICK JACK; OTHERS CALL JESS A JOKE

According to Jack Curley, Jess Willard has a big chance to lick Jack Johnson at Juarez on March 6. "Willard is just the man to tire Johnson out," says Curley. Some other sport critics don't agree to this. Many sport writers in California and the middle west are ridiculing the match.

arguments. "Scientists tell us," he said, "that a healthy body depends largely upon a healthy mind. The growth of the body should be apace with that of the mind. Then why cast out the coach? He is an instructor, just as much as a professor. "Would Mr. Hibben have a member of a class in Latin perform the duties of instructor? It looks just as rational to me. Athletics are a part of college life just as much as essential as expert class instructors."

SPORTS

SEEK TO ELIMINATE ROUGH PLAYING IN BASKETBALL GAMES

Success and Popularity of Game Depends on Stopping of Intentional Fouling and Rough Tactics.

Comparative basketball scores, made so far this season, demonstrate that games this year will be marked by closer guarding and less goal making than in years previous. Basketball has gained in popularity in wonderful advances during the last three years and in Wisconsin is rapidly becoming the principal high school athletic game, even surpassing football in interest among the students.

Games played in Janesville demonstrate the need of stricter enforcement of the rules to prevent rough playing. In the high school Coach Gay Curtis has eliminated much of the rough play but it truly said that high players lack enough aggressiveness to be of state championship calibre. The Cardinals played their first home game last Saturday and the general impression left among the spectators that entirely too much rough work was indulged in, which marred an otherwise interesting game. There is a marked difference between hard and rough playing for a heavy player often falls an oppressing because of greater weight.

Excessing the numerous falls that were caused by intense playing, there was no excuse for the tripping and "on the side" shuffling and intentional pushes that caused some minor injuries to the players.

Manager George Caldwell after the contest gave orders that tripping, rough work and shuffling were to be mean that a player was "out" from the game and during the coming game, this rule is expected to be enforced. Players and coaches of basketball in Janesville have argued the question on whether it is the rough team that wins the most games of the five that depends on speed, accuracy in passing and shooting. The general decision favored the latter team and all agree that rough tactics and an injection of football and pugilism in a contest, is a detriment.

The proof of this argument is furnished in the success of the "Troy New York All Star" five, who are the only team able to have beaten the Cardinals in three straight games. The Cardinals trimmed the state team badly and they did it because they gave the soldiers no chance to employ their usual rough tactics through speed—having a rapid fire passing game that easily outshadowed the dribbling tactics of Fond du Lac.

In the east the coaches have placed a rigid ban on "indoor football" and have developed players who are not adapted to any one position who "cover" rival players with pretence of watching their own individual opponents and then form an offensive formation that enables them to pass the ball without hunting for their men.

Several methods have been employed to eliminate rough play and wrestling game officials should cooperate with the referees in bringing about a reform in the game. Scoring changes were tried but these failed to accomplish the desired result and it is agreed by friends of basketball that the preventing of rough play is alone in the hands of the official who should be educated to discriminate between hard playing and that of rough tactics.

The "Troy" team has adopted a system of passing which is to be tried by the Cardinals. Instead of passing the ball through the air, the New York players bounce it on the floor to a team-mate, preventing their opponents by checking the pass through surprise. When covered by a guard in front the player has little chance to pass the ball accurately through the air without losing it. The intended path of the ball is blocked by the guard's arm and body.

The rules of basketball as advocated to be played during the games at the Auditorium are A. A. U. but allowing a player to shoot after a dribble. The A. A. U. rules prevent the rough playing as under intercollegiate regulations and yet allow for the dribble which is almost necessary on such a big floor as at the rink.

The different size of basketball courts is another drawback to clean playing for a five that is usually accustomed to a small floor is generally guilty of holding more than a five that plays on a larger floor. A rule is urgently needed to make the floor uniform and this regulation certainly should be adopted in time if basketball is to increase in popularity in the next years as it has done in the past three.

CHARLEY WHITE TO REST BEFORE FIGHTING AGAIN. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Charley White, leading lightweight of the west, turned to his home here yesterday and was ordered to take a long rest by trainers and physicians. White plainly showed the effects of his illness, which attacked him on the eve of the championship bout with Wolf in New York, for he narrowly escaped pneumonia.

Billy Gibson, promoter at Havana, Cuba, has wired from New York to match Mike Gibson and McGowry for a twenty round decision bout at Havana in March. Hudson, Wisconsin, promoters are also after this match.

EMPEROR WILLIAM WATCHES MARCH OF RUSSIAN PRISONERS. [Correspondence of The A. P.]

Berlin, Jan. 28.—Roland von Berlin brings the following anecdote concerning the Emperor and a general designated as "B."

During his recent trip to the Eastern theatre of war, the Emperor paid a visit to the general in question, and showed the keenest interest in, and most intimate knowledge of, what the army corps commanded by "B" had done. The corps in question was one of the very best, said the Emperor to the general in the presence of the staff officers, and he hoped that it would continue its fine work.

The conversation had taken place in the building in which the headquarters of the general were located. After shaking hands with the officers, the Emperor left, accompanied by General "B" and some of his aides.

When the party reached the door it was found that several thousand Russian prisoners were being marched past. For a moment the Emperor watched the procession, then, with a broad smile on his face, turned to General "B" with the words: "I will say, General, that this is cleverly done."

The smiles of the Emperor grew wider yet when the embarrassed General "B" tried to explain that it all was an accident.

FIRM WILL PROVIDE MOUTH-ORGANS FOR MEN SERVING IN BRITISH FLEET. [Correspondence of The A. P.]

London, Jan. 28.—In response to the demand for mouth-organs for the use of the British soldiers and sailors, one of the larger instrument firms here has ordered 10,000 from Switzerland. All of them are for a single customer, who intends to distribute them among the various ships of the fleet in home waters.

Another firm has sold 4,000 mouth-organs since the beginning of the war, and has placed an order for 4,000 more. The only source of supply now are Switzerland and the United States.

A number of good country places are advertised for rent in this issue of the Gazette. Turn to the Want Ad page now.

Now is the time for action. For prompt action on matters of state-wide importance. It is not a time for sulking in the tent as did Achilles in the tale of Homer at the siege of Troy. The state has a governor who is available to all visitors. If questions are not understood, why not consult the man who the people hold directly responsible for the administration of state affairs?

The question before the people of the state today is the legislature now in session to accomplish the work it set out to do or is to fall because of the bickering of men with personal ambitions.

"To be or not to be" that is the question. There are matters of vital importance to come before this legislature and matters upon which the future prosperity of the state depends. Are these interests to be turned aside for the personal ambition of some individual member are they to be handled with wisdom and sagacity for the best interests of the people as a whole. "To be or not to be" that is the question.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

There is a bill before the present session of the legislature, introduced by Assemblyman Hambrecht, to make the date of the birth of Abraham Lincoln a national holiday in Wisconsin. Its fate depends upon the good will of the legislature, yet behind the whole proposition is the national pride of the great northwest in the "iosplitter" of the Vabash, who rose from a humble home to be president of the United States in one of the most troublesome periods of the nation's history. It would seem that business and the world at large could stop on the anniversary of his birth, February 12th, and pay tribute to his greatness. Other states have adopted this day as a holiday. Why not Wisconsin? Lincoln tramped through the wilds of southern Wisconsin as a soldier in the days of the Black Hawk rebellion. He visited Wisconsin cities as a young man and why should not Wisconsin honor his name by creating a legal holiday commemorated to him and his deeds?

THE LACKEY.

It would appear that Senator Hustling, falling to deliver the democrats of the Wisconsin legislature to the La Follette element, has gone down to Washington to become a "lackey" to Joseph Davies, the political boss of Wisconsin as long as the democrats remain in power. Hustling must bow and scrape to Joseph as long as Joseph remains one of the powers to be "what am," behind the throne of Woodrow Wilson. He endeavored to pay off his political debt to La Follette by helping organize the legislature in his behalf. Falling in this he goes down to Washington to discover that the only democratic United States senator from Wisconsin, must stand back and permit Davies to dish out the patronage of the Wisconsin post-offices and what other "paw" the administration may have to throw from their table to those that lie beneath waiting their share of the feast.

There has never been such a statewide effort on the part of the newspapers to retain any man in office as has been the crusade in behalf of the retention of James MacKenzie as secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. The campaign has been made regardless of the political affiliations of the man in question, but based upon his personal character, his worth to the state and his record as one of the best executives the Wisconsin state fair has ever had. Six hundred papers, members of the state press of Wisconsin, have received letters recounting his work in behalf of the official and the members, pledged to his removal, will find it hard to explain their vote to the state at large should they elect another to fill this responsible position.

President Wilson seems determined to compel the enactment of the law relative to immigration into the United States to conform to the requirements which he, as a schoolmaster, desires to lay down. Wilson is like the story told at the outbreak of the revolutionary war with reference to Boston and the enforcement of the stamp act and the tax on tea. One man can lead a horse to water but a whole army can not make him drink. England found that out to their cost in the days of seventy-six and the decade that followed. Perhaps Wilson will also.

The situation in Europe does not give any promise of a speedy solution of the warlike trouble. Perhaps Lord Kitchenor was right and the real fighting will not begin until next spring. Meanwhile thousands of brave men are being sacrificed daily that the ambition of emperors and kings may be satiated.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

Dark Days.

There are some days when you can't lay up a cent; it all goes out for the ice and gas and rent. And you wonder how and when and where you're ever going to be a millionaire. It somehow seems that your neighbor gets ahead, just as though you were dead. But if the whole truth he would but impart. He envies you to the bottom of his heart. Just bear in mind before you call the hearse. There's always someone fixed a whole lot worse.

Uncle Abner.

A little deception now and then, is practiced by the best of men. Also Hank Tumms says when he and his wife were married they were made one, and it didn't take long to know which is the one. The lady admits it herself.

Any durned chump around town thinks he could run a newspaper a blamed sight better than the editor does.

There ain't hardly any feller in this country that don't have more fun than John D. Rockefeller does.

Old Lem Stubbs sent Ame Hilliker a bar of soap for Christmas. He says he didn't give useful gifts. Ame hasn't used it yet.

Matilda Hanks wants to take vocal lessons, but her old man says it's necessary, as she kin hear her 'way down to the postoffice.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE?

This has been one of the greatest questions that has puzzled politicians from time immemorial. The persons who believe that politics were created by the modern day conditions are laboring under a misapprehension. The game of politics is as old as the tombs of the pharaohs in Egypt and can even be traced back to the Garden of Eden when the famous apple episode occurred. Whether by strength of armed retainers or by subtlety of intrigue, the game of politics has been played through the ages. We have had notorious examples of the result of intrigue, of armed warfare, or maneuvers of diplomacy until it has verily become known as political intrigue.

Just at present up at Madison one of the smoothest and wisest games of politics is being played that has been manipulated in years. The peers of the state elected Emanuel L. Philipp as governor on a platform which was all his own. They named the members of the assembly and state senate to aid him in the work of reformation of state affairs. They had confidence in the men they selected, be they republicans or democrats, and in consequence we find both houses of the present legislature made up of men in all walks of life.

The assembly is made up of men who are there for the business before them. Before all else the majority of the members are willing to sacrifice personal ambition for the best interests of the state. They realize that the state has long been the experimental grounds for numerous political reforms. They wish to remedy this evil, to act in good faith with their constituents, and enact wise laws for their benefit and aid.

In the senate we find the seed of discord sown. Men who should stand behind the governor are flirting with the bubble of reputation, puffed up with pride by the cunning words of the minority leaders who seek revenge for the hindrance of real legislation, for the hindrance of their personal ambition. Men who will introduce measures for legislation which stand for results directly contrary to the best interests of the men who elected them to office and who will block legislation by all legitimate means on the questions of law that will aid their constituents.

It might be expected that this would be true of men whose political future was so intensely wrapped up in the personality of the leader of some political dogma or creed, but for men thinking for themselves, claiming to stand for what is good and best in the enactment of laws, it is surprising.

That the opposition to the men behind the administration should come from men who owe their very political life to the wave of actual reform that swept them into office, is surprising. Yet this condition exists. Blinded by the praise of the individual, flattered by the men in the minority, we find senators so blinded to the best interests of the people that they are willing to sacrifice the people for their personal ambition.

The present state administration is not infallible. No man in the governor's chair is not liable to make mistakes, but this is no excuse for men, elected by the people on the platform on which the state administration is founded, from standing behind the administration measures and not seeking to hamper them by useless amendments, senseless bickerings and technicalities.

A feller ain't in style now unless he has got a belt on his overcoat. Hod Peters says the best he has been able to get so far is a belt on the ear.

It takes a mighty versatile feller to admire his own wife's clothes after the first year or two and make her believe it.

There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to the Keely institute.

Whenever a maw's ear sticks up, his tail hangs down; and whenever his ears lay down his tail sticks up, which don't go to prove nothing in perticular excepting that he is a good emblem for the democratic party, which finds it purty hard to be unanimous about anything.

The polecat has got more individuality than almost any animal of which we know of.

CARLSON HAS NO WATCH COUNTS TIME BY WORK.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Denver, Jan. 29.—Governor George A. Carlson, Colorado's new executive, has never carried a watch. His friends do not expect the mere fact that he has become Governor of his state will Carlson to purchase a time piece as they say his idea is that time is measured by work accomplished and not by mere hours and minutes.

Because of Governor Carlson's lack of a watch, one of the first things his secretary did after the new executive took office was to purchase a clock which is to be put in a convenient place so that it may at least be of interest to visitors who threaten to take up too much time.

Canny Advice.

At a time when the Scots had considerably less love for their southern neighbors than in these days a father, taking leave of his son, said: "Sandy, my lad, ye're about the gang up the London. Tak' a th' siller ye can frae the English—tak' everything ye can frae them. But mind ye, Sandy, they're a law-fetichin' people so be careful o' them. Never fecht a bald mon, far less catch him by th' hair."

It was also the sixty-sixth birthday of County Clerk Lee and in observance of the double anniversary of officials at the court house wore carnations presented by Mr. Lee. On the desk of the county clerk's office there was a bouquet of the same flowers. Mr. Lee received numerous congratulatory greetings and messages from his friends and constituents throughout the county.

P. G. Winch of the firm of W. Winch & Son, real estate dealers at Milton Junction, has returned from Eau Claire, where he attended the fifth annual convention of the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Brokers, held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

He declares that the meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and that many fine addresses were given. Scott R. Brewer of Indianapolis, secretary of the Indiana Real Estate association, and J. T. Bates of Baraboo were among the speakers. Poor descriptions, as the main cause for title troubles was emphasized.

First Gold Found in California. The first discovery of gold in California was made in 1848 by James W. W. Marshall, who happened to pick up a glittering nugget in the bed of a stream. Since that time the state has yielded more than one and one-half billion dollars in gold. Marshall died a poor man.

Teacher Disagreed. "Mamma, when you speak about three things you always ought to say 'are,' 'oughtn't' you?" "Yes, dear. Why?" "Cause the teacher said it wasn't right when I wrote on the blackboard: 'The grand old red, white and blue are waving over Cuba.'"

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

FUN AND KITCHEN STOVES.

"I'm having such fun with my kitchen stove," a little friend said to me the other day.

One does not instinctively associate fun with a kitchen stove, so I naturally asked for further details.

"Why, I'm trying to see just how little coal I can use and still get results," she exclaimed. "When we first went to housekeeping I used two hods or more a day, but I've cut it down to a hod, or less. I've studied the drafts, you know, and just the right moment to put coal on. My next door neighbor and I are having a race to see who can use the least. You can't imagine what fun it is."

As Much Fun As a New Gown.

I couldn't doubt that it was fun. If she had been telling me about a pleasure trip or a new gown her eyes could not have shone more brightly.

She is a girl who, before her marriage, lived in comfort and some degree of luxury. She never did any housework and I doubt if she knew whether a kitchen range consumed one hod of coal a day or ten. Today she is running her little home on a limited income and doing every bit of the work except washing. People have said that when the novelty and the first shimmer of her love wears off she will be heartily sick of it. I don't believe it. No girl with that spirit could be.

Making a Game of Life.

No one who has this spirit of making a game of life, a sort of contest with oneself, is ever heartily sick of things. It's the people who would ridicule the idea of getting fun out of a kitchen range who get sick of things.

Nothing will take the dullness out of routine work like a contest of this sort. I know a woman who cordially detested housework until she came into contact with the science of household efficiency which is the study of cutting down the time necessary for routine tasks by saving steps and motion. She was deeply interested in it and at once began to put the theories into practice by putting dishes and dusting; and by various other schemes. Not that she shirked the hours which she had to devote to housework, but it sweetened them. "It's positively fascinating," she told me the other day. "To see how much I can cut down the time for my various tasks. I've cut my dishwashing ten minutes a meal, not by hurrying but by doing things more efficiently. Just think of it, that's thirty minutes a day."

Again a certain tylist when she has some particularly uninteresting copying to do finds new zest in it by trying to see how few mistakes she can make, and how exceptionally well she can make her copy look.

One of the greatest happinesses in life is to be always interested; one of the greatest misfortunes is to be eternally bored. No one who has learned to make a game out of life will ever be bored.

GOWNS TO CONFORM WITH COLOR OF AUTO

A New Stunning Model Motor Boat is of Dreadnaught Grey Which Hangs Loose, With Choker Collar.

(By Margaret Mason.)

If motor fashions you would know, You, auto go to the auto show. For this year it is apropos To match your togs to your tonneau.

New York, Jan. 29.—A heliotrope colored limousine with heliotrope curtains behind which looms over the motor coach, a heliotrope motor bonnet and accompanied by a Perlinese with a heliotrope silk sweater, is one of the smart sights of Fifth avenue and the park these bright imitations of Spring afternoons. The unknown purveyor of the new fashion is a new fashionable and to match up your apparel and even your hair to the coloring of your newest motor car.

With violet shades at the latest coloring at Paris is the only natural there should be a great run on purple veils, purple coats and caps and sweaters.

A stunning new model motor coat of dreadnaught grey made of light weight velvety cloth hangs loose and rippling from the shoulders and is decorated with the waistline in front with a quilt belt formed with two straps of the material which cross over each other and button with a cloth covered button on opposite sides. A choker collar of white cloth buttons on the left with a single cloth covered button well up under the ear. Wide cuffs of the white cloth finish the plain long sleeves and the white turned up with a cuff of the same material. The whole outfit with which to step into one of those love-lime grey cars with grey cloth upholstery.

Another striking coat of buff ripple cloth is gathered on a narrow yoke, both front and back, has an old collar which turns into a short skirt that buttons over the top. A short skirt with a single yellow rose in front. The motor coat is made of a soft and adaptable, it is an ideal motor for such use. It is also very effective as a trimming on the motor coat and wrap de luxe and is used to face the cuffs and collar with artistic effect. Although not as serviceable as the prettier and softer than the regulation leather buttons and bandings, but have been used for several seasons.

Naturally the wonderful silk sweaters that grow more beautiful and season are bound to be favorite motor attire of the warm weather. The sets of cap and sweater to match are rarely striking and weight yet warm and swiftable and vasty becoming. All at the very same time. There are two forms of caps those which are knitted silk about your head and with a book concealed with a button or silk pompo ornament on the right side.

One of the smartest types of the silk sweaters is in plaid effect with a collar and vest-like slip down the front of a plain color. The plaid cap has a band of the plaid silk around the face.

The very best material for extra warm sweaters is a silk wool which is fuzzy and light as thistledown. It is no longer considered good to have lower filled holders in your car, but all bound to other comforts of home, including a rack which holds a vanity case, card case, pads, pencils, a clock, another rack for hats and parcels, electric cigar holders with racks and ashtrays, holders for books and magazines, a rack for your umbrella with a drain which goes through the bottom of the car and allows your wet umbrella to drip with into an electric foot-warmer and even electric attached gloves if you yourself take a fancy to sit at your own wheel on a winter day are a few of the improvements. Even with all these things you may fit in too if you don't mind struggling up a bit.

Bound to Succeed.

"What makes you think Daubner will succeed as a painter?" "He has the soul of an artist and the perseverance of a book agent."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tired Nerves

Welcome Maté

A London chemist of world-wide reputation says: "Maté must be considered a most valuable beverage. It is especially medicinal to the stomach and nerves. It has great sustaining powers but does not irritate. Its effect is soothing and quieting with no deleterious consequences of any kind."

Maté is so refreshing, invigorating and sustaining that it is a ideal beverage for tired mothers and women weary with the nerve-tiring details of housework.

Maté is sold just as Nature made it—without any chemical additions or adulterations. It is pure and wholesome, and can be indulged in as frequently as desired without harm.

Woodley's Maté is easy to prepare; the day's supply can be made at the morning boiling and it is delicious when served between meals or rebuffed. If you feel nervous or irritable, or tire easily, keep a pot of Maté handy, drink it whenever you feel the need of something to refresh you.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LONARD

"Do you remember Milton Barber?" asked Mrs. Wells as she followed her friend and they climbed into the electric.

"The man who used to go with Ruth Barber?"

"Yes. Every one thought they were engaged, you know, but they had some trouble and Milton went west and was gone eight years. He traveled around considerably, but he made good."

"Ruth married a man happy?"

"Yes. He is a very good man, and he is very happy. He is a very good man, and he is very happy."

"What didn't she do?" asked her friend.

"What didn't she do? She would be an easier question to answer. She made a day and night of it. The 'commonness' of Ruth's people, her 'shallowness', her 'utter lack of all qualities to make a man happy' were all in her ears continually. He tried silence first, thinking if she got it out of her system quiet would be read, but she wouldn't let him. And finally he told her she might as well save her breath, for her opinion would change nothing. The old lady was so upset that she went to bed."

"That must have been a relief to the household," laughed her friend.

"Milton went into her room and said, 'Mother, you can go to bed and read in bed, but you prefer, but nothing you do or say will change my plans in Iowa. Ruth and I are to be married a week from next Wednesday. We should be glad to have you present, but your absence will not invalidate the ceremony, and he left the house. He spent most of the time at his father's farm and slept in his brother's room. Thus left to herself, his mother decided to get up."

"Did she go to the wedding?" asked Mrs. Wells.

"Yes, she went in bitter, solemn state. It's too long ago to see that they are throwing away every thing they hold most dear by using such methods. Milton never writes to her, but he writes an occasional formal note. She utterly killed any affection he may have had for her."

"Are the young people happy?" asked Mrs. Wells.

"Yes, and I understand they are doing well. Here we are. This is my home."

MOTHER MCGREW AND SUSANNA SNAIL

I wonder how many of you know the tale That I'm going to tell you of Susanna Snail. She lived in a shell, as snails always do, And was one of the children of Mother McGrew.

Her manners were good and her temper was mild, And in most ways she was an obedient child. But she had one fault, which brought her to grief— How she hated to run errands passes belief!

She always was willing and ready to play And scampered about in the liveliest way. But if she was asked to do errands at all, She never went fast; she simply would crawl.

Sometimes when they sent her for bread to the store, She wouldn't get back for a good hour or more. But when she went out with her young friends to play, She always could run a lot faster than they.

And Mother McGrew said, "It seems very queer That you can't RUN errands, you're lazy I fear. Then Sue tossed her head and said, 'Oh, very well, But work always gives me a pain in my shell!'"

That was such a perfectly silly excuse That Mother McGrew said, "There's really no use In talking to you—if you won't mend your ways You can just travel slowly the rest of your days."

With her magical stick she tapped Susan's shell, And right from that minute, or so I've heard tell, A snail never yet has been able at all To go any faster than just a slow crawl.

The next time you see a young snail going by, I wish you would look at him closely and try To think how you'd feel in his place, and then run As fast as you can and get your errands done.

loaf, take a piece of dough about the size of a loaf of bread (will make about two dozen biscuits), add lump of lard about size of an egg and one-half cup sugar. Work it good and let raise. When light, shape and bake.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When washing table linen, add one cup cooked starch to tub of bluing water; your linen will iron much easier, look better and wear longer.

Rat and Mouse Exterminator.

Rat and mice like corn, also lard. Sprinkle freely with strychnine. Cut much in two-inch squares and place easily taken up in the morning out of the children's reach. By the count it has killed six mice in one night in the same house. (Not a good remedy where there are pet animals in the house.)

Keep a magnet in your hook and eye box and reject any hook or eye that the magnet will pick up, as that shows they will rust.

MORE LIVE STOCK THAN A YEAR AGO

Government Statistics Contradict Reports That Prices Will Reach High Figures.

For the first time in many years, information collected by the United States Department of Agriculture shows that all classes of live stock in the United States are increasing in number. Thus the real facts contradict absolutely the reports that prices for meat and shoes would rise to unprecedented figures in the immediate future. It has even been said that the government statisticians predicted meat at 50 cents a pound and shoes at $10.00 a pair within the next two years. Such a prediction, the real government statisticians say, is quite unwarranted.

On January 1, for example, the number of beef cattle showed an increase of 3.4 per cent over the number a year ago, and an actual increase of 1,125,000 head. Hitherto the number of beef cattle in the United States has declined steadily since 1910. There are also more milk cows in the country than last year, the increase being 1.7 per cent, or in numbers 72,000. Swine, however, showed the greatest increase of all classes—5.6 per cent. On January 1, 1914, there were only 58,352,000 swine in the country. This is accounted for by the fact that the production of swine can be increased more rapidly than that of other classes of live stock and consequently an enlarged demand can be met more readily.

The prediction of 50-cent meat and shoes was accompanied by the declaration that France alone has taken from America nearly 300,000 horses within the last five months and that other countries at war have drawn upon our resources in the same proportion. The facts are that more horses were on the farms of the United States on January 1, 1915, than there were a year before, the increase being 200,000 head, or 1.1 per cent. So far from France alone having taken 300,000 horses from us, the total exports since the war began have been only 200,000 horses, or 1.1 per cent. Since there are approximately 25,000,000 horses altogether in the United States, the drain on account of the war is scarcely alarming.

It is in fact pointed out by government statisticians that the market value of farm horses has actually declined to such an extent that the average is now about $6 a head less than a year ago. This decline is most noticeable in the cotton states which make a business of breeding horses for sale to other states. Horses have declined even more than horses, their value being now $11.50 per head less than a year ago. The explanation is to be found in the depression on account of the cotton situation in the south, which is the great market for mules. An improvement in this respect will do much to restore the demand for horses, so that government specialists, while ridiculing the notion of a horse famine, are convinced that farmers will find it profitable to use good work mares for breeding stock.

As for hides, the situation is not quite so clear, but even here there has been much gross exaggeration. From two to three times as much of the leather used in this country is imported, about 25 per cent of the foreign hides coming from Argentina, 15 per cent from Canada, 11 per cent from Mexico, 10 per cent from European Russia, and 1 1/2 per cent from France. Since the outbreak of the war, importations have shown a certain falling off, but for September, 1914, for example, being only 34,000,000 pounds, instead of 45,000,000 pounds the year previous. There is, however, little reason to suppose that this decrease is permanent, or of sufficient importance to create any real scarcity. Since the great bulk of the imported hides come from countries that are not at war, shipments are interfered with in any way, and the only new factor to be considered is the possibility of an increased demand by the warring countries.

It is believed, however, that the United States is now in a better position to face such a situation than for years past. The tide, it seems, has turned. Instead of live stock steadily decreasing year after year, this year, for the first time, as has been said, all classes show an appreciable increase. Including horses, mules, milk cows, beef cattle, sheep, and swine, there were an additional 1,125,000 more farm animals in the United States than on January 1, 1914. The increase in the total value was $78,024,000, or 1.3 per cent. It is quite true that the increase is not yet proportioned to the increase in population, which is approximately 2 per cent, but the fact that there is an increase in the live stock is definitely an answer to the alarmist exaggerations and misleading figures.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 28, 1915.

To the Gazette:
In a short article published in your column on the 20th inst., I advised against the killing of cattle because they were suffering from or liable to suffer from foot and mouth disease. I also stated that I had seen the same disease upon my father's farm in 1854. This farm was in Oregon township, Dane county, of this state. I remember the year and the season well owing to changes in our home that left its imprint upon me, with both good and evil consequences, years after.

There are those who declare the only way to exterminate the disease is to kill the entire herd, regardless of number afflicted. At first we were told by those who were supposed to know, that foot and mouth disease was contagious but not infectious. However, after a dairyman living in Brown county, this state, had been home a few days following a visit at some stock show, a few (three or four) of his small herd gave evidence of the disease, and he not only then did I see published "The virulent of infectious diseases is the foot and mouth ailment going through our state and some others in the Mississippi valley."

Farmers were not allowed to bring eggs, poultry, hay grain, or anything, in fact, to market, whose herds were known to be suffering with said virulent disease.

Guards with police power walked adjacent highways carrying guns with orders to shoot any bird or beast that attempted to leave the infected place. Yet the same police were charged to have their placards across any and every farm with dirty soil on boots as well as fingers.

How about the squirrels he had shot. How about the birds he had shot. As I have already stated (Dec. 26th) have seen very many cases since 1857, the disease being the very same in character as the present one, excepting of others to the contrary, notwithstanding. Those cattle all well in time, as their owners expected they would.

Now with all that has been said about this disease by Dr. Benard and others of his profession, declaring it a most terrible scourge, and commanding owners to kill their stock as the only means of preventing infection, not one, so far as I know, has been killed. No etiology, no pathology, still harrah about its infection. Certain the way most often are buried there must be an awful infection arising from the soil in due time. If they must kill, they should be compelled to bury the carcasses.

I do not believe this disease is very contagious and not in the least infectious. If it were contagious there would be a greater per cent affected in the herd than there are. If it were infectious there would not be so many well herds intervening the sick ones. I believe it is one may cause it in one hundred, it prevails more upon the low damp soil. Possibly said soil is super-saturated as well as the food. Since forests are cut and prairie fires ceased, the amount of acid in ground is nearly or quite absent.

Change conditions of soil where needed, keep cattle high and dry as possible in wet seasons. Treat lesions with blue vitriol. Give iodine of potassium in doses prescribed by veterinary surgeon, but do not kill.

Much better treatment may be found in the above after diligent seeking for cause. There is something rotten in Denmark. I am from Missouri. Please inform. Yours truly, GEO. H. FOX, M. D.

HOW TURKS ESCAPED FROM BRITISH GUNS

During Bombardment of City of Alexandria Commanders on British Cruisers Outwitted by Enemies.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
Constantinople, Jan. 29.—A correspondent of the Tasvir-i-Ekhar sends a number of interesting episodes from the bombardment of the Turkish coast north of the city of Alexandria. The most interesting of these is how the threatened bombardment of the city itself was averted. After shelling the railroad near Pajus, a British cruiser appeared before Alexandria, where, meantime, the two locomotives of a train which had been partly demolished by British shells also arrived. The commander of the British vessel demanded the surrender of the garrison of Alexandria and the transfer of all arms in the city within eighteen hours under penalty of bombardment of all public buildings.

The reply made by the Turkish commander was that for each Turk killed he would hang an Englishman. In the end it was arranged that the blowing-up of the two locomotives killed by the British shells would settle the matter. The correspondent speaks of the locomotives as "culpable," but does not explain the reason why he uses this term.

Later in the day the Turkish commander sent word to the British cruiser that he could not find any dynamite for the blowing-up of the locomotives. The dynamite had been sent to Damascus and the commander of the British cruiser then afforded to supply enough explosives for the destruction of the two locomotives.

While these negotiations were in progress a Turkish locomotive engineer had quietly to Pajus, hooked his engine to the partly demolished train, still mobile, and then made off in the direction of Mersina. When the English heard of this they made the two locomotives in Alexandria useless and then steamed back to Pajus, too late, however, to reach the train with their guns. With throttle wide open the Turkish engineer was well away towards the interior. The British cruiser arrived off Pajus.

To make the humiliation of the British more complete, they had dynamite been joined by the Russian cruiser "Askaniya" when the two returned to Alexandria and found that the commander of the city still insisted that for each Turk killed in the proposed bombardment, an Englishman would be hanged by breaking his neck at the end of the rope, but by strangulation, possibly, the most horrible form of death. Choked, the two cruisers steamed for other parts.

ENGLISH SAILOR TELLS HOW IT FELT TO BE ON A SINKING VESSEL.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)

London, Jan. 29.—A member of the crew of the steamer "Lanark," which was sunk by a mine in the North Sea, sends to relatives here an account of how it feels to be blown up by a mine.

It seemed exactly like a cart going over a big brick. Everyone was shot off his feet, the forepart of the ship was thrown up into the air, the iron bulkheads flew to pieces, and the windlass went over the bows. The instruments on the bridge were shattered, lamps fell, tables were blown out of their sockets, and dishes flew out of their places. All this at exactly the same instant. The captain and first officer were lifted off the bridge and landed on their faces on the deck below. Only two men were badly hurt, however; they were both in their bunks at the time.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite
Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

U. S. SHOULD HEED CIVIL WAR LESSON

Change at Eleventh Hour in Rebellion to Efficient Leaders Turned Victory Tide to Union.

Just half a century has passed since the close of the great Civil War of Rebellion in the United States, which began early in '61. Even at this late date the question is often asked, why the first part of the war was a failure and why the Union forces were so constantly meeting with defeat. Those were indeed dark days and days of horror and anxiety throughout the north. The "On to Richmond" had begun. Our gallant young soldiers were sacrificing their lives because of inaction and exposure. As a leader, Sherman was daily showing incompetency. Not only was this true in Virginia, but generals elsewhere, in the various departments, were not able to report any progress for their respective commands. It was failure everywhere. A cause existed for all this, what could it be? To those having experience, from day to day the question seemed easy to answer. Very many of the first enlistments, especially those from the eastern states, went forward with incompetent officers, simply because of some unjust home influence, political or social. At any rate, the evidence was there plain to any observer. Boys in their teens, were wearing shoulder straps, from colonial days, had remained at home with their parents, or at least taken with their chums and schoolmates. It was a novel and aggravating sight, to behold these officers, with high-heeled boots, starched collars and white gloves, in their haughty position and egotism. We have seen them, with their cause, punish the boys in their charge in the most cruel manner. This was endured at first, but when worn finally turned and the dastardly treatment was resented, to the extent that a considerable number of them were either sent home or were made targets when the opportunity came. Inefficiency of armed service, then, was the lack of progress on the part of the Union army. The first battle of Bull Run, Virginia, was the first alarming evidence of incompetency on the part of our general in chief. It was indeed fortunate that confederates were almost annihilating the Union forces did not march on to Washington. The way was clear to them, but they did not know it. One of the worst examples of a general's incompetency was the early campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, West Virginia, where General Banks, of Boston, had been placed in command. Banks was recognized as a leading statesman, but as a man for the military service, he was an out and out failure. Who does not know, or who has not heard of Gen. Banks' three days' retreat down the Shenandoah Valley, in May, 1862, where his command was routed, and almost destroyed? The writer was there and did not forget his experience and escape. The rank and file constituting the federal army were loyal and true, beyond question. The first times there was cause for complaint and its interest was because of ill treatment. General Sheridan brought the first success in the constant defeat we were having, and it was Sheridan who recommended to the war department that the sergeants and corporals be taken from the ranks and placed in command. This was done, and immediate improvement was noticed, and when General Grant held the reins over all the boys in blue, "Old Glory" went forward to victory.

It was indeed fortunate that confederates were almost annihilating the Union forces did not march on to Washington. The way was clear to them, but they did not know it. One of the worst examples of a general's incompetency was the early campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, West Virginia, where General Banks, of Boston, had been placed in command. Banks was recognized as a leading statesman, but as a man for the military service, he was an out and out failure. Who does not know, or who has not heard of Gen. Banks' three days' retreat down the Shenandoah Valley, in May, 1862, where his command was routed, and almost destroyed? The writer was there and did not forget his experience and escape. The rank and file constituting the federal army were loyal and true, beyond question. The first times there was cause for complaint and its interest was because of ill treatment. General Sheridan brought the first success in the constant defeat we were having, and it was Sheridan who recommended to the war department that the sergeants and corporals be taken from the ranks and placed in command. This was done, and immediate improvement was noticed, and when General Grant held the reins over all the boys in blue, "Old Glory" went forward to victory.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite
Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, it is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

FIFTEEN DAYS TIME GRANTED BY COUNCIL

Commission Pass Resolution Which Will Allow Tax Payments Until Feb. 15 Without Penalty.

At the meeting of the council this afternoon, the commissioners passed a resolution whereby the date for tax payments, before the five percent penalty is imposed, is extended for fifteen days to February 15th. Acting on the law passed by the state legislature making it optional for the city governments to extend the time of payments to March first, the commission took action for the granting of the fifteen day privilege, believing that there was no need of a month's time.

Over eighteen thousand dollars was collected by City Treasurer George W. Muenchow yesterday and more than this amount is expected to be turned in today. A large number of payments are being made by checks and the total tax collections will be around $150,000 today as the larger payments are being made.

Mayor Fathers called a special meeting to bring the resolution before the council as last Tuesday the council adjourned until the coming Tuesday, not expecting the need of such a resolution as passed this afternoon.

No other business of importance was brought before the meeting.

INTRODUCES A BILL TO GIVE STATE AID TO JANESVILLE FAIR

Assemblyman Franzen Offers Measure Providing for Audit of Claims of Local Association.

Efforts of the directors of the Janesville Park association to secure state aid for the Janesville fair were a step toward realization today when Assemblyman Franzen introduced a bill empowering the secretary of state to audit the claims of the local fair board for state aid. The measure also provided for similar action in the case of the Athens Advancement and Agricultural association of Marathon county.

According to the information received from Madison the proposed audit would cover the bills of both associations for the year 1914, so that it may be possible if the bill is passed to secure a back payment as well as insuring state assistance in years to come.

The amount of aid which the Janesville fair will receive is estimated at about $1,700.

The statute under which state aid would be granted provides that "eighty per cent of the total amount of premiums paid at its annual fair for the preceding year upon livestock, articles of production, educational exhibits, agricultural implements and tools, domestic manufactures, mechanical implements and productions, for which published premiums have been offered," shall be paid within thirty days after Feb. 1 out of the state treasury.

The law provides that the payments shall be charged to the appropriations for agricultural societies. Provision is also made requiring the presentation of claims by the various fair associations upon blank forms furnished by the secretary of state.

It is understood that there will be no objection offered to the Janesville claim on the part of the Rock County Fair association of Evansville, and it is probable that the local agricultural association will be listed for state aid without opposition.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Country Mouse" Coming. An announcement of special interest concerns the latest Bosworth release, "The Country Mouse" which will be presented at the Apollo on Monday. In this sparkling comedy of social and political life in a state capital, Miss Adele Farrington stars. Her first appearance in pictures, after a highly successful career in musical comedy, Miss Farrington possesses to an unusual degree the art of rousing sympathy for the character she is portraying as well as making the utmost of humor of the situation. In the "Country Mouse" she plays the title role, a dowdy little country woman who finds herself leaders of the political and social life in a state capital. Her interpretation is extraordinary fine and sympathetic. Hobart Bosworth who wrote the play is an splendid advantage as the farmer politician.

AT THE APOLLO.

Clara Kimball Young in "Lola" There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough how they come, we may. The truth of this saying is exemplified in the unfolding of the feature which will be shown at the Apollo on Tuesday. The story of "Lola" is one of the most remarkable that has ever been put on the screen and there is no doubt that it will become a subject of widespread discussion and divergence of opinion. Was Lola really dead? Was her father justified in his scientific experiment? Was Lola to blame for the inexplicable change in her character or was she but the victim of some inscrutable fate? These are some of the questions that will be asked. Whichever the answers may be, it will be universally conceded that in the adaptation of Owen Davis's play, pictured by James Young, the favorite picture star, Clara Kimball Young has found a vehicle which enables her to give full vent to her unique gift of emotional characterization and at the same time portray a story of extraordinary interest.

No children will be admitted to this picture. The seat sale is now open.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

During the four years that De Wolf Hopper, the foremost impersonator of comic characters now appearing in light opera on the English-speaking stage, has been appearing with the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company in sumptuously staged and brilliantly executed revivals of the world-famous operettas written by the two masters whose names have been mentioned, supreme efforts have been made by the managers of the theatres in some of the smaller cities to get him to consent to appear at their playhouses. To all of these requests both Mr. Hopper and Wm. A. Brady, under whose direction the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company was organized and is being presented, turned deaf ears for the good and sufficient reason that when the annual engagements of the organization in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia had been played the remainder of the season could be devoted to simply the larger centres of population where engagements of no less than a week are the invariable rule.

However, this season, in response to special pressure brought to managers of the principle theatres in some of the more important smaller cities surrounding Chicago, it was decided to devote a few days to visiting a limited few of them immediately following the current engagement at the Auditorium Theatre there. This city was one of the few chosen and Mr. Hopper and his associate artists are to be seen here at Myers Opera House, Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 8th and 9th, when "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance," "Trial by Jury" and "Pinafore," will be presented.

It is promised that the beautiful production now being shown in Chicago will be brought here absolutely intact and that the performances will be exact duplicates of the ones given at the Auditorium.

AT MYERS THEATRE. On Tuesday evening, February 9, at Myers Theatre, the new old musical comedy "The Prince of Pilsen," will be the attraction.

Revivals are rarely successful. Press and playgoers alike are forced to smile at the "sides," "soliloquies," pathos and loose technique that marked play player and playwright of fifteen years ago. They interest only the champion of the "good old days" who insists there is nothing worth while in today. Happily "The Prince of Pilsen" has proved an exception to this rule. The piece has been universally successful. Probably this is due to the fact that "The Prince of Pilsen" is not so old fashioned after all. Certainly it contains more music than half a dozen of the average current musical comedies, and there is enough comedy in the character of Hans Wagner, the rich brewer from "Zinzinnati" who is mistaken for Pilsen's Prince, to food with laughter the dramatic plots of many a present libretto.

For the revival of this musical comedy gem there has been assembled a cast of unusual ability, including John W. Ransome, in his original role of Hans Wagner, Edward T. Mora as the real Prince of Pilsen, G. Burke Scott, the American Lieutenant, Eda von Luke, the first-class city widow, Geraldine De Rose, the chic French maid, Claudia Rodgers, the demure ingenue, Regina Richards, the Vassar College girl, Earl Moffatt, the priggish English Lord, and a number of other well known players. A beauty chorus of generous numbers will add physical and vocal charms to the other attractions of the musical comedy, and a special orchestra under the skillful direction of Victor Clark will interpret the delicious score. The scenery, costumes and effects are entirely new this season.

AT MYERS THEATRE. Vaudeville of the better class will be offered at Myers Theatre for this week end, starting tonight. The attractions have been sent out by the Western Vaudeville Manager's Association of Chicago, one of the best looking agencies in the country. The lineup will be as follows: Carlotta is billed in advance as "The Human Dragon," a contortionist of unusual ability. Billy Newkirk and Evans Sisters are next on the bill in what they term their "Delightful Review of the Mozarts." Then come the Mozarts, who have received the following excellent criticism in one of the exchanges: "The Mozarts, who close the bill, deserve great credit for their originality and the novelty of their act. Couple with this two clever people who know what to do and how to do it to please the public, you have the answer why the Mozarts were the hit of one of the best six-act bills seen at the Lyric this season. The act opens showing the interior of a log cabin, where some excellent German comedy is put over and a clever dance by the lady member. From this scene the act goes to a winter exterior on the mountain, and when the curtain went up and the lights were turned on the beautiful setting was the signal for a hearty round of applause. Down the hillside comes Steinle and later Heinle wearing regulation snow shoes, and indulge in a most novel snow shoe dance. The dancing and singing of good comedy all through the act is of such nature to cause considerable comment from the audience."—Exchange.

LEADS OPPOSITION TO SHIPPING BILL

Senator Gallinger, snapped last week while leaving capitol.

Republicans are putting up such a hard fight against the administration's ship purchase bill that President Wilson may be obliged to call an extra session if he wishes to have the measure passed. Senator Gallinger of Vermont, minority leader in the senate, has given notice that the Republicans are united and determined and will prevent the bill's passage if possible.

His "Bill." He had spent half the winter in Washington endeavoring to get a private bill through congress, and returned to the bosom of his family a sadder and wiser man. Shortly after his arrival he was met by a friend, who greeted him warmly with: "Glad to see you back again. How about your bill?" "Bill—bill?" said the disappointed solicitor confusedly, with a dim recollection of an encounter with the hotelkeeper. "I left it unpaid."

All Fond of Sweets. Honey antedated all forms of sugar by many centuries and was the only sweet in common use. Greeks loved it and Romans fought for it. The Egyptians cultivated it, and in far off Persia honey was the preferred delicacy. There was none other used by civilized man; savage man doubtless satisfied his hunger for sweets by eating fruits and vegetables containing natural sugar.

Constipation a Penalty of Age Nothing is so essential to health in advancing age as keeping the bowels open. It makes one feel younger, fresher and forestalls colds, piles, fevers, and other dependent ills.

Cathartics and purgatives are violent and drastic in action and should be avoided. A mild, effective laxative tonic, recommended by physicians and thousands who have used it, is the combination of simple herbs with pepsin sold by druggists everywhere under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The price is fifty cents and a dollar a bottle. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 1452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

Two Bits of Wood. Importance cannot be reduced to a matter of size. The success of a piece of work may depend on a tiny detail. Such is the case in regard to that marvel of construction, the violin. Rev. H. R. Haweis in his "My Musical Life" tells of the care and labor expended on two little pieces of wood which go to make up the perfect whole. The sound bar is a strip of pine wood running obliquely under the left foot of the bridge. A slight mistake in its position, looseness or inequality or roughness of finish will produce that hollow, teeth on edge growl called "wolf."

It takes great cunning and a life of practical study to know how long and how thick the sound bar must be and exactly where to place it in each instrument. The sound post is a little pine prop, like a short bit of cedar pencil. It is the soul of the violin, and through it pour all vibrations. Days and weeks are spent in adjusting the tiny sound post. Its position exhausts the patience of the maker and makes the joy of the misery of the player.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoonful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

Probably Missed It. Speaking of the old wild days in Scotland an aged dame, with her grandchildren about her knee, said concerning a leader of her clan who had been beheaded following some trouble with the crown: "It was aae great thing o' a held, tae be sure, but it wis a sad loss tae him."

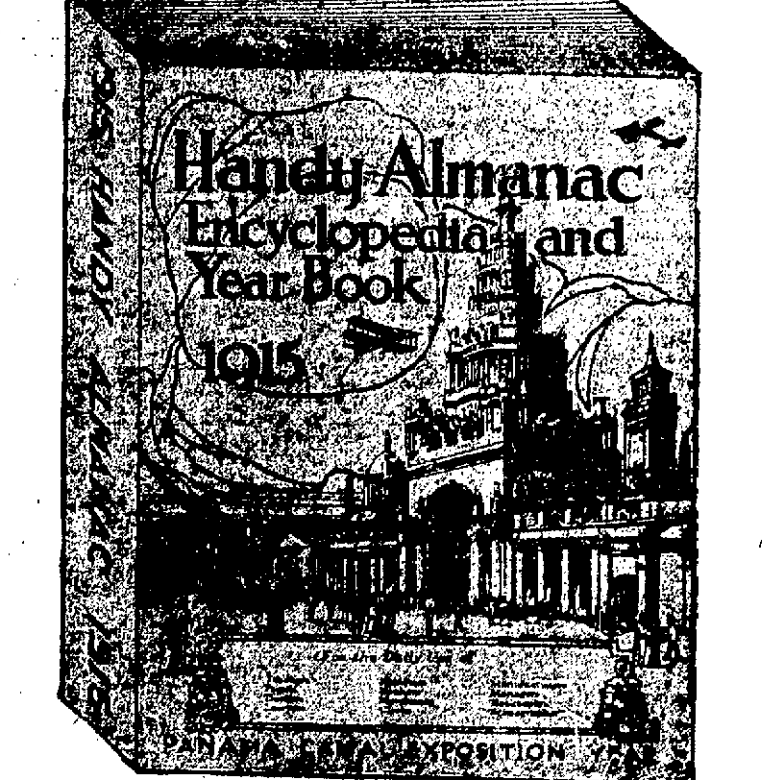

Weaving Called Old Art. Weaving is believed to be an older art than spinning. Rude looms are pictured on the tombs of Thebes, and it is believed that the ten curtains of a fine linen, blue and purple and scarlet, with chernubim of "cunning work," made for the tabernacle, were tapestries, the work of the loom.

Jesus Can Heal

By Rev. PARLEY E. ZARTMANN, D. D.
Secretary of Extension Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—"And he saith unto the man who had the withered hand, stand forth. Stretch forth thine hand." Mark 2:3, 4.

This miracle was performed by Jesus on the Sabbath day, while his enemies watched him to see whether he would heal on that day. And still Jesus is performing the miracle of healing the soul, even his enemies being witnesses.

This command is a demand to a man who was sure he could not obey, and who had not the strength to do it. It is a call for the adventure of faith. Even as Abraham was called to go out and did so, not knowing whether he went. It boldly asks me to do the impossible and discloses the source of power to do it, revealing the sympathetic, human Jesus as the one able to save. A man with a withered hand. Stand forth. Stretch it forth. Whole as the other. And Jesus. What a gospel the story proclaims! What a Savior it reveals! How it rebukes our unfaith! Good news is better than good advice. This man needed good news; he got it; he believed it; he received it; he rejoiced in it; so may you.

Helplessness.

There was a man there which had a withered hand. This is a typical case, an illustration of what Jesus Christ can do for this and other spiritual disorders and diseases set forth by all his cases of healing. And no case ever is too hard for the great physician. There was only one thing wrong with this man, he was by no means the worst in Capernaum. A withered hand is not so bad as leprosy. But the man was helpless. Tradition says he was a carpenter; what could he do with a withered hand?

What is your condition before God? You may think it only as insignificant as a withered hand, but you are a sinner. The withering of the muscle, the paralysis of nerve, is no more disastrous to bodily effort than the blighting and enfeebling power of sin is destructive of all holy, acceptable service with God. Your poverty of life, your feeble sensibilities with reference to righteousness, your faint and feeble desires for a godlike life—how eloquent of these is that withered hand. And if your right hand is withered you know it, and other people know it too. Your sin will find you out. Your sin makes you helpless, your work is useless, and your testimony is fruitless. May the presence of Christ help you to realize how vast and vital is the helplessness of a withered hand. "O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from this body of death?"

My sins, my sins, my Savior!
How sad on thee they fall!
See through thy gentle patience,
I tender feel them all.

Hope.

Christ's gracious presence brought sure hope to that otherwise helpless sufferer. So far as the record goes, Christ's gracious intervention was unsolicited. But he was there to feel for, and help, and heal the despairing. Do you not remember the man at the pool of Bethesda? When Jesus saw him he said, "Wilt thou be made whole?" He seeks out the sick, the sinful, the sore distressed. He knows about the sheep that is lost, and he goes after it until he finds it. The sinner may be content in his sins, but the Savior seeks the sinner—blessed be his name. That is my star of hope in the dark night of my life; that is the comfort in my hour of sorrow; that is my joy when I know that sin is sapping and will destroy my soul. "But God commendeth his love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." Thank God for one in whom we may hope. He is here, just now, facing us, and for the very same purpose. He detects human incompleteness; he says, "In me is thy hope."

My hope is built on nothing less
Than Jesus' blood and righteousness;
On Christ the solid Rock, I stand,
All other ground is sinking sand.

Healing.

How simple is the command to the man. Stand forth. Christ met the man on his lowest level, taking him just as he was. No change, no improvement, and no new feeling was asked—nothing, except to act at once, and because Christ bade it. Stand forth. The man could do that, and he did. It seemed like a simple thing, and so it was, but also it was the step which made healing possible. You cannot save yourself, but you can take the first step which brings you into the presence of Jesus. Of course Satan says, Do not stand forth; the crowd will laugh at you, and then Jesus will deceive you. Stand forth. Stretch forth thine hand. But that is impossible, you say. But the only way to health was the obedience of faith.

The Birth of Samson.
(The Story.)

In a book characterized by the most part with the simplicity of the most of the incident surpasses all. It is simplicity that is its true charm. In the divine mystery of maternity is lifted from the plane of animalism to conscious partnership with God. As to the mother of Jesus, so to the mother of Samson, the angel of the Lord reveals the approaching event of an Oriental and stigmata of a woman, childlessness, a son who is to become one of the overliving heroes of Providence, a material basis in a perfect body is to be framed that shall make possible by its surpassing strength divine deeds of prowess which an alert mind shall perceive necessary to emancipate "Israel." The woman and the messenger from she recognizes as a messenger from God, talk together about the event which the shadow of prudence. The somewhat overdone hygiene and eugenics of this late thousand years. With that absolute and unflinching understanding which always maintains a true marriage, the woman at first opportunity tells her husband of the circumstance. Without discounting his wife's narrative for a moment, he craves first-hand information for himself. To secure it he betakes himself to the west means, prayer. The angelic messenger comes to the woman as she sat alone in the field, without doubt contemplating devoutly the destiny that awaited her. Thus to every prepared heart the prepared message comes by some carrier or she flies to him with the news that the visitor has returned. Man's movements are quick as a flash, and the words are brief and exactly to the point. "Art thou the man that spakest to the women? When thy words come to pass, how shall we order the child and how shall we do unto him?" The prescription is given again. Perhaps there was more than Oriental hospitality in the invitation so graciously given. Man's was uncertain whether the angel was man or angel. The proffered refreshment would serve as test, for angels never ate. When the meal was declined, Manoah knew that his guest was from the sky. His guest of the stranger's name means nothing to Jacob asking the same thing of the man with whom he had wrestled all night. Even angels have a sense of humor. In this instance one of them plays with the word "Wonderful." The inevitable psychological reaction follows. Manoah's death because he had seen God. His wife with a woman's quick intuition assures him that God can not intend to slay them since he had received their sacrifice. And again, how could the prediction be fulfilled if they were to be put to death? Next the man and woman are witnesses of a miracle without significant. The flat rock instead of being a turned into a altar. That light never burned on land or sea burns on the communion table, and in its preternatural flame the angel ascends to whence he came.

The Teacher's Lantern.

Here is a cross-section of human life three thousand years ago. As such it would command attention and elicit interest in any age or land. It proves a picture of childlike piety in the family. . . . The angel's visit to Manoah is very like that to Gideon. . . . It is very true to life that Manoah hesitates just when he gets an answer to his prayer. . . . It is all an invaluable study in parenthood. It is sex hygiene and eugenics without fumbling and confusing mystery. The best feast for an angel is a sacrifice to God. This passage discloses beautifully the relation of respect and confidence which should always maintain between husband and wife. The characters of each are drawn with the dearest skill to be imagined. The man thinks he must needs die. The woman with quicker wit shows him how death is impossible if the prediction is to be fulfilled, and that he who has received their sacrifice must be by that saved their property, and not offended. . . . The man, who so often happens, is apprehensive, while the woman is confident. . . . It has been said that a man toils slowly around the circumference only to find a woman there before him. She takes the diameter of intuition. The man has this advantage. He can give his reason, while the woman can only say "it is so because." . . . In this incident marriage is lifted to the highest possible plane. . . . As it should be in every case, something holy, to all intents a "sacrament." . . . There was advantage in the prayer of Manoah that he might personally be assured to testify to the event instead of one. . . . The mother of Samson belongs to the class of women of sacred history whose sensitive nature enables them to see and feel divine secrets. There are some interesting parallels and contrasts between the anticipated births of Samuel and Samson. The mother of the latter does not show the bitterness of the former in her lot as a childless woman. Both women are abstemious in anticipation of child-bearing. Both vow their sons to God.

Foreign Mission Opportunities—the World Around Us.
The war now in progress is a complete hindrance in some parts to a specific missionary effort. It is a serious impediment everywhere. Yet a moment's reflection makes it evident that there should be no suspension of missionary benevolence or falling off in gifts. The safety and comfort of missionaries and their families is to be provided for, and the results of their efforts are to be conserved. The faith and honor of the church is pledged and pledged to this. The fields that are out of the war zone should be cultivated at this period with increased effort and thus the equilibrium maintained. A reserve fund should now be being in the treasury of each denomination to cover the increased expense incidental to the resumption of missionary effort in the territory that has been affected directly or indirectly by the war. When the roar of cannon ceases, more Macedonian measures should now be taken, measures should now be taken to meet this prodigious demand.

CAFE LIFE MADE EASY FOR FREMONT YOUTHS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fremont, Jan. 29.—"Table d'Hotel," a la Carte and various other forms of captions that decorate the mystifying menu cards in high class restaurants and dining cars henceforth will fall to mystify graduates of Fremont's High School.

They are taking a course in the art of ordering, and the bashful and timid man who finds himself stumped at a positiferous menu while taking dinner with his best girl will now be enabled to order the "Anchovie" and "au gratin" with impunity of the habitus.

BELGIANS FIND GERMAN SPIES WORKING IN MILL.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Antwerp, Jan. 29.—During the fighting around Aerschot the Belgians noticed that the sails of a neighboring windmill were behaving erratically. Occasionally the sails turned, then stopped, and then turned again. Suspecting that they were being used to convey signals to the enemy, the Belgians attacked the mill and under a hail of bullets took it by storm. In it they found a German officer and a private soldier with a military cipher and the miller, on whom was found $1,350 in German money, was executed.

WOULD REDUCE FEE FOR OIL INSPECTION

Report of Chief Inspector Meyer Recommends Lowering of Rate from Ten to Seven Cents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—The annual report of Louis F. Meyer, state supervisor of inspectors of illuminating oils, to Governor Philipp, contains several suggestions and legislative recommendations of public interest. In view of the large surplus of oil inspection receipts over the disbursements, he recommends that the inspection fee be reduced from ten cents per barrel to seven cents. The cost of such inspection to the state has been greatly reduced during the past few years through the greatly increased use of petroleum products in the state, together with improved business methods.

Mr. Meyer says that the department turned into the general fund $2,546.56 after all expenses had been met, spending 37 cents of every dollar collected. About 51 cents went for deputies' salaries and slightly less than 9 per cent paid all other expenses.

The statistics of the fiscal year show that the receipts were $99,196.45 disbursements $56,649.89, turned into the general fund $42,546.56 as surplus of receipts over disbursements, number of barrels inspected was 991,964, number of cents disbursed per ten barrels inspected 57, percentage of increase in number of barrels inspected 24.25, percentage of increase in disbursements 15.34, percentage of increase in amount returned into general fund 439.

It is recommended that all oil inspection fees collected be turned into a separate fund to be used for the payment of the expenses of the department, because the salaries and traveling expenses of the deputies, which form more than 90 per cent of the total cost of operation of the department, are not under the control of the state supervisor.

Twenty-five persons were killed and 97 injured in accidents from the use of petroleum products in the state during the year, as against 30 killed and 85 injured the year before. No accidents were reported as resulting from the violation of the new law. Greater care in handling gasoline is advised and education of the public in this regard is strongly urged. Mr. Meyer declares that the energy of the deputy inspectors has absolutely wiped out the fraud in the sale of gasoline, for gasoline is now sold upon its actual gravity test throughout the state, and the report concludes by saying that thousands of dollars are annually saved to consumers in this manner.

GERMAN ARMY RULER CHECKS AMUSEMENTS IN CITY OF MUNICH.

Amsterdam, Jan. 29.—On the eve of the annual Munich carnival, a proclamation issued by the military commander of Munich, General von der Thann, urges the abandonment of "frivolous entertainment and dancing." It says: "Everybody is entitled to relaxation and recreation, but both must accord with the gravity of the times. That is what our soldiers at the front would demand of us; therefore, no dancing or any other amusements during the coming carnival! The commandant trusts that the sound sense of the public will render unnecessary a specific prohibition."

Attention is drawn also to the frivolous films, generally of French or English origin, which are displayed in the picture theatres. Cabaret and concert programs are often so compiled as to suggest anything but that we are at war. The public takes pleasure in afternoon "coffee concerts" which unfortunately are increasing, and in frivolous operettas and dancing.

GERMAN GUN EXPERTS SAY IT TAKES THREE YEARS TO MAKE MORTAR.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
Rotterdam, Jan. 29.—In answer to an English official statement that English ordnance factories are now turning out a gun which is the equal of the Krupp 42-centimeter field mortars, a statement has been issued in Germany assuring the public that it requires more than three years to complete the construction of one of these weapons.

FORTY YEARS AGO

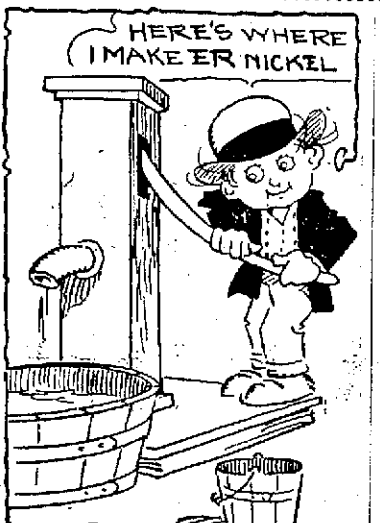

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 29, 1876—A correspondent of the Recorder advocates the building of a pickling and canning factory in the city. The idea is a practical one and if properly conducted there is an increasing demand all over the country for pickles and cannings of the best quality. There is no doubt but that a few hundred dollars invested in the proposition would bring a big dividend.

"Bravo Bostwick" says a Milwaukee paper in copying the article from the Gazette in which Mr. B. tells the lady that the Can Can and private lectures should be suppressed by law. Messrs. Bennett and Truckwood etc., have dissolved partnership, Mr. Bennett still continuing the business at the old stand on East Milwaukee street. Mr. Bennett is a practical workman and can turn out some of the finest work in the city. Orders left with him will be properly attended to.

"BILLY" SUNDAY STIRS UP PHILADELPHIA

"Billy" Sunday, the baseball evangelist, did some tremendous "stick work" against the devil and his allies by delivering two fiery talks to record-breaking audiences at Philadelphia. His spectacular style caught his hearers right from the start and in his "straight from the shoulder" fashion he told Philadelphians that not all were Christians who thought they were. In scathing terms and with forceful gestures he upbraided both the "smug, self-satisfied" clergy and "the folks who go to church because it's half-past ten Sunday morning."

Good, food, honest wine, a grateful conscience and a little pleasant chat before a man retires are worth all the possets and apothecary's drugs.—Stevenson.
